

McNeal Cemetery

This website has an alphabetical list of everyone known to be buried in the Cemetery in McNeal, Arizona, and maps of all the known graves there. Here's a short guide to it all.

-- 1, The alphabetical list begins on the next page. The list has 682 names (Nov. 10, 2017). For every person whose grave is identified, the list has a number and letter, just to the left of that person's name, which shows the grave's location on the maps.

- 2, The maps follow the alphabetical list. The cemetery has two large sections, one to the west of the main entry gate, and one to the east. There are separate maps for each section. Each map has three pages.

In each section, the rows of graves run parallel to Davis Road, which is at the north edge of the cemetery. In both sections of the maps, the row nearest to Davis Road is Row 1. The numbers increase as you move south; they presently run up to 48. There's an exception in the west section: there are a few extra graves right near the fence by Davis Road; this is labeled row zero. In the east section, near the entrance to the cemetery, there's a large area with no graves; but when the graves do begin, they follow the pattern described here.

In both the west and east sections, each row has about a dozen graves, or "plots." For the WEST SECTION, the map labels the grave plot nearest the center gate as A, and the graves west of that run from B through L. For example, "1 B" is the first row/second plot west of the main entrance. For the EAST SECTION, the map labels the grave plot nearest the center gate as M, and the plots east of that run from N through X. "3 U" would be the third row/ninth plot east of the entrance. Between every four rows of graves, there is a small path to let you easily walk east or west toward any plot you are looking for. Even if a grave is a little out of exact alignment, this number and letter will get you very close.

--- 3, a little more information.

Some people on the list and map are perhaps not yet deceased, but have placed a marker where they intend to be buried. Also, some gravesites have missing or illegible markers. If someone is clearly buried at a site, the map says "unmarked" or "illegible," whichever applies.

Here are some of the sources used to prepare this guide:

-- The My Cochise website at <http://mycochise.com/> - click on "genealogy" --"cemeteries" -- "McNeal Cemetery." The most recent death date on this site is 2011. The site contains 607 names. NOTE - in 2017, this site is no longer accessible.

-- The USGEN website at <http://files.usgwarchives.net/az/cochise/cemeteries/mcneal.txt> - an older list of burials with locations, but no map for those locations. The most recent death date on this site is 2000. The site contains 491 names.

-- The Find-a-Grave website at <http://www.findagrave.com/> - where the public can post names, dates, photos, and other information about the deceased, at no charge. On the main page, click on "Cemeteries" across the top. Type "McNeal Cemetery" in the first box, and "McNeal, Cochise County, Arizona" in the second box. Click "Search." On the new page, click on "McNeal Cemetery." From there you can type in a name, or click on "690 names added" (the current number), to begin an alphabetical list of entries. The McNeal Cemetery site contains 690 entries, although 14 are labeled "unknown," and there are a few duplicated entries. 91% of the entries have photos of grave markers.

-- My walks through the cemetery, recording grave marker information and location, up through November 10, 2017..

This information may be downloaded for personal use, but be aware that some of the sources listed above might be copyrighted.

For comments, corrections, and questions, email hdjxn@vtc.net If you can identify who is buried in the "unmarked" or "illegible" plots, please email the information.

Now on to the list and maps. The alphabetical list is pages 2-15, the map of the west section is on pages 16-18; the east section is pages 19-21
